Dear Dennis, 10/2/96

In your 9/25 you say that Jamie did a reasonably good job. I think, considering all, she did better than that.

With a single exception: she refused to have a single paragraph indentation in any of the quotes!

As far as I've gone, to missing page 53 of the retyped copy.

I can't understand why. They were all indicated.

And all will have to be done.

I enclose retyped 52 and 54, for--there was no 53, and the draft, for 46, where the omission begins where the paperclip is, beginning with "do not seem..." and ends at the bottom of draft 48, also enclosed.

I've aldo now the retyped first part of Honorable Men, being done by a Hood student. He likes it and is enjoying doing it.

As I indicated in an earlier and hasty note, I've gone over, with Wrone, another batch I'd laid aside and them mislaid, and sent copies of Gerry because he is not involvedin any of this retyping and is not about to go abroad.

In haste,

Harold
